

Leigh Brown, BA (Hons) Business

"I am currently working full-time and have always wanted to complete a degree as I never went to University after I left college. I chose distance learning for two reasons..."

Name: Leigh

Age: 33

Course: BA (Hons) Business

University of Wales

"I am currently working full-time and have always wanted to complete a degree as I never went to University after I left college. I chose distance learning for two reasons. Firstly it's very, very convenient as I have other commitments to attend to such as work and family. Secondly, whilst I do benefit from meeting tutors and actually being taught as opposed to self-study, I sometimes struggle academically if the environment is too formal.

I had absolutely no problems with finance, there were plenty of options and the fee is very reasonable. I have a realistic chance of recouping the fee hopefully through higher earnings if I can achieve my goals.

The course itself is great. As much as I would rather be relaxing than studying, the course is really tailored for the likes of me and has so far made it not only convenient, but enjoyable. I'm also glad I chose Business as I am actually finding the module subjects interesting and relevant.

I have had two years previous experience in dealing with RDI and can honestly give positive feedback. If it weren't for RDI I would never have done the first year let alone the second or this third year. Although I have had a 3yr gap between my second year and this final year, RDI have kept their same core values. I would definitely recommend RDI to others. Especially if someone is apprehensive about studying, exams or worry their own capability."

Read more student stories here